Business Data & Communications Channeling (BDCC)

Problems Identified within the Dedicated Network Access Industry

Business communications have become an important part of our daily work life. Companies increasingly depend on technology to operate efficiently. Due to this trend, we are now introduced with yet a brand new concern in business infrastructures: “uptime”. When data lines fail to maintain its integrity, operations are put to a halt. Therefore, be it general internet access, inter-office connections, or product specific data lines, “uptime” has become the single most crucial factor when considering a network based implementation. Furthermore, there are countless vendors that all claim 99.9% uptime and superb customer service which more than often, are unable to deliver as promised.

Why Metacentrix BDCC [Smart Cable/DSL/T1/T3/OC12 Vendor Selection]?

We now have the industry problems identified. This is where Metacentrix comes in as your channeling outsource to optimize the ROI of your investments. The value that we bring to our customers are based on the following:

- Having previously used our selected vendors' services and know the truth
- 10+ years of industry experience
- Solid relationships with multiple telecom/data/network providers
- Ability to produce effective comparative analysis on multiple vendors
- Understanding what's best for each situation

These factors alone are enough to ask yourself, “why deal with the vendors directly when they all tell you the same thing and you don't know who to trust?” Sit back, relax, and let Metacentrix take you to the right provider that will produce the right results. Optimize your infrastructure and don't deal with high costs or less than friendly customer service. Contact us at info@metacentrix.com to get in touch with a local representative near you.
